

The Child Development and Educational Studies Department
Is Pleased to Host the 2nd Annual

CHRIS LAMM LECTURE

“Endangered Play, Endangered Development: Why Play is Even More Important in the 21st Century And What We Can Do To Promote It”

With noted Author, Researcher, and Advocate

Diane Levin, PhD, Professor of Education

Boston University’s Wheelock College

October 19th, 6:00pm

*Wilshire Auditorium
Fullerton College*

Play is vital to all elements of a child’s development, yet there are many factors at work that are robbing children of the full benefits of play. Diane will explore the forces in society that are endangering play and will describe a wide variety of strategies we can use to promote and advocate for healthy development.

Dr. Levin has authored (and co authored) dozens of articles and eight books, including: The War Play Dilemma, Beyond Remote-Controlled Childhood, So Sexy So Soon, and Teaching Young Children in Violent Times.

Free Admission.

Suggested donation of $10.00 or two canned goods to benefit the Lab School and the Fullerton College Food Bank would be greatly appreciated.
